In 1 John 1:5-10, he sets before us the vision of God as being absolute light, a light far greater and purer than that golden sun above. And in so doing he wants his readers (you and me) to experience and recognize the blackness that is all around us and within us, the blackness of sin, this great darkness that is only exposed, can only be seen, once we have gazed intently upon the perfect light of God.

First John 1:5 – 10 opens the main topic of John 's letter. God is entirely goodness and truth, and those who follow God cannot also follow evil and falsehood. John offers a pattern of " if " statements, comparing each to the truth. In particular, John mentions those who claim to be entirely free from sin, or to have never sinned.
