We've used latex concrete for the roof of our cisterns (see steps 8 and 9 of How to Make a 6000 Gallon Water Tank), as well as the roof of the kids' bedrooms. It would also be ideal as a quick and exceptional-looking porch. The shape and style of your latex concrete project depends almost entirely on your imagination. Within this article, we'll run you through both the overall principals and the more specific details, and we hope you go on to make some wild looking creations.

Apply the well-mixed concrete and latex paint mixture to your application and allow drying for the recommended time set on the concrete mixing directions. There will be less shrinkage of the concrete due to the latex paint filling in more of the air pockets. This mix also works well for stamping concrete, as the finished form holds more detail.
