Forgotten Book - The Flanders Panel. Arturo Perez Reverte is one of the most interesting Spanish crime writers of modern times and The Flanders Panel, first published thirty years ago, is a fascinating example of his work. The story is set in Madrid, and in 1994 it was filmed as Uncovered, although as yet I haven't managed to see the movie version, which stars Kate Beckinsale as Julia, the art restorer from whose viewpoint the events of the story are seen.

The Flanders Panel by Arturo Pérez-Reverte, Paperback ...
In The Flanders Panel, a contemporary serial killer is juxtaposed with the mystery of a 500-year-old assassination. In his often polemical newspaper columns and the main characters of his novels, Pérez-Reverte often displays pessimism about human behaviour, shaped by his wartime experiences in places like El Salvador , Croatia or Bosnia [2] and his research for crime shows.

Arturo Pérez-Reverte - Wikipedia
A fifteenth-century painting by a Flemish master is about to be auctioned when Julia, a young art restorer, discovers a peculiar inscription hidden in a corner: Who killed the knight? In the painting, the Duke of Flanders and his knight are locked in a game of chess, and a dark lady lurks mysteriously in the background.

Of Perez-Reverte's work, I'd only read "The Fencing Master" before, but I'd grealy enjoyed that, so bought the Flanders Panel. Set in modern Spain, it's very different and deals with the fine art world, murder and chess. If all that sounds a bit highbrow and uninteresting, don't let it disuade you too much.
